

THE Amber Book

A guide to the Architects' Registration Exam

AMBER BOOK FIRM LICENSE AGREEMENT

Firm obligations

None (other than prompt payment of the annual invoice and storage of the Amber Book workbooks at your office(s)).

Amber Book obligations

1. To work with you, beginning right now, to get as many firm architects licensed in the shortest amount of time. We are not study material for the next exam division, but rather a comprehensive, animated, high-quality course with expedited licensure as the goal. If you are not thrilled with the course, we'll refund your firm license fee. (Talk to those in your firm who have already completed the Amber Book program. . . . you'll be thrilled with the course.)
2. To provide the Amber Book online video course to the firm's employees. If the firm purchased, for instance, six seats, then up to six employees at a time will have access to the course. Simply have the course participant email online@amber-book.com with a preferred course start date and we'll take care of everything else.
3. To provide hardcopy books to each location of the firm, as required. We need the name of a point-person at each location to receive and store the books for enrollees to use when they are ready to start the course. If you forget to tell us you are out of books, that's not a problem. We will mail a hard copy directly to the course enrollee and a new batch of hard copies to the office point-person.
4. To keep a running list of those waiting to enroll. Each enrollee will have access to the course for three months. If they need an additional three months' access, they'll email us and we'll get them in the queue (if there is no queue, they can renew and start their second three-month period right away). If an enrollee has completed the course and no longer needs access to it, they can let us know and we'll open up a spot for a new enrollee. If the queue gets long, we'll alert you and you can choose to purchase an additional three-pack of licenses at a pro-rated cost. If we see a pattern of empty course seats, we'll alert you and the firm can choose to purchase fewer baskets of seats next year.
